

Ulster County Emergency Communications/ Emergency Management

Haz-Mat in transit is the primary emergency management issue identified through the work of this planning process. Situated in the heart of the Northeast Region, Ulster County hosts a varied thoroughfare of traffic, including rail road cars, river barges and roadway carriers. The network of local, state and federal routes within the County are an essential part of the infrastructure needed to keep our economy vital. As the population expands, so does the amount of traffic to meet supply and demand.

In order to best serve and protect the safety of our citizens, increased commercial vehicle enforcement is necessary. This includes increased training and availability of law enforcement personnel to monitor our roadways as well as improved communication and information exchange with the railways.
